Keynote Speaker Dr. Jon Callegher Ph.D

Executive Director, Job Talks

“Balanced Intelligence: Why Skilled Trades Careers are Better”

Did you know that Skilled Tradespeople are among the most fulfilled workers in the country? In this dynamic presentation, Job Talks Executive Director Dr. Jon Callegher will take us through his ground-breaking research into the Skilled Trades. He will also introduce the concept of "Balanced Intelligence" as a means of changing mindsets toward work that is hands-on, stimulating, and involves the body and mind. By the end of Jon's presentation, you will be armed with key messages for promoting pathways to the Skilled Trades to students, parents and fellow educators. You might even consider a career change, too!

A Brief Biography:

Dr. Jon Callegher is the Executive Director of Job Talks, a research and media group that focuses on Canadian workers. Jon is on a mission to change the way jobs in the Trades are looked upon by career-seekers, parents, and educators.

A Millennial Sociologist, Jon has a Ph.D. from the University of Waterloo. He is also a professor in the School of Marketing at George Brown College in Toronto.

Jon has appeared on CBC radio, TV, and at conferences internationally, speaking about work, generational differences, and marketing. He has been published in The Globe and Mail and he is the author of Pearson Canada's next Marketing Research textbook.

Symposium Schedule in Detail
